We are very pleased to present you with the latest edition of Insolvency and Restructuring International, that – thanks to the efforts of our contributors – will offer a unique worldwide tour on the latest case-law and law developments of corporate and insolvency law.

This issue will provide a glimpse into evolving restructuring regimes at a national and international level, starting with the valuable contribution of Daniel M Glosband and Kizzy L Jarashow regarding modification or termination of foreign proceeding status under Chapter 15 of the US Bankruptcy Code.

Location in the US for international companies with cross-border ties is discussed by John J Monaghan, Lynne B Xerras, and Kathleen M St John who analyse the recent decision over the Baha Mar Resort insolvency cases, the Bahamian-based resort.

You will then find an update of the recent development on the bankruptcy of banks under Russian law: Sergey Treshchev and Elena Malevich provide us with a detailed presentation on the insolvency proceeding and on the out-of-court procedures available to Russian banks.

Karyn Heavenrich Alexander, who, beginning from the RadioShack case, guides us through an interesting tour on the challenges that the very popular unitranche facilities present in corporate insolvency proceeding under US and UK law.

Whilst Ukraine is facing the issues regarding the proceeding of voluntary winding-up of a company, the courts of Crimea are struggling among the Ukrainian and Russian parallel insolvency proceedings. We thanks Anton Molchanov, as well as Oleg Kachmar and Yuriy Kolos for their very interesting contribution.

The law is changing in the US, where an amendment to Chapters 15 forms has been recently implemented, as well as in Europe. Under the Croatian law significant changes to the bankruptcy system has been introduced in 2015, raising serious concerns and issues that, as Vedran Plasaj illustrated, the courts will face and – hopefully – solve in the very near future.

The edition closes with a look at the corporate insolvency regime in India. H Jayesh, Aditi Bagri and Aaheree Mukhereje address the new Indian code’s double purposes: the consolidation of a time-bound mechanism for reorganisation of companies and the maximisation of the value of the assets of insolvent entities.

We hope you enjoy this edition and look forward to seeing you at the two upcoming conferences as illustrated by Gregor Baer, our Co-Chair.

We are always interested in hearing about new developments in insolvency and restructuring from around the world and therefore we strongly encourage your contributions.
