Dispute Resolution International
Guidelines for Contributors

Dispute Resolution International, published by the Dispute Resolution Section of the Legal Practice Division of the IBA, aims to cover issues of relevance to the international dispute resolution community. Edited by Kim Rooney, a barrister and arbitrator based in Hong Kong, and an Editorial Board comprising leading practitioners from around the world, and reaching over 3,250 dispute resolution practitioners, Dispute Resolution International is published twice a year.

All members of the Section receive the journal as part of their membership. It is also available to individual subscribers and libraries.

Dispute Resolution International articles provide an in-depth discussion of current developments and timely issues in all areas of dispute resolution, including litigation, arbitration, mediation and other forms of dispute resolution, and negligence and damages, The Editorial Board especially welcomes articles that offer a survey of the law in areas of particular interest to our international readership, as well as articles which illuminate legal problems or issues currently confronted by governments, international organisations, private enterprises etc. Articles should provide practical analysis and are welcome from both private practitioners and academics.

Articles should typically be around 3,500 – 5,000 words, although articles up to 10,000 words will be considered for publication.

Articles must be the original work of the author. Content created using generative artificial intelligence cannot be classed as the author's original work and will not be accepted for publication on these grounds.

Except in special circumstances, the Editorial Board will not consider articles published or to be published elsewhere. Authors are asked to confirm that their typescript is not and will not be so published, or to explain the relevant circumstances.

Copyright in the article will normally be assigned to the IBA.

Title and author of the article should be clearly indicated together with the brief personal description (max 50 words) that the author would wish to see appear.

Contributors are asked to provide a brief headnote of around 100 words describing the contents of their article.

All articles are refereed to ensure both accuracy and relevance. Authors may be asked to revise their articles before final acceptance.

Referencing in IBA publications follows The Oxford Standard for Citation of Legal Authorities (http://www.competition-law.ox.ac.uk/published/oscola.shtml). Each footnote in the article should follow the model below:

For books: Hartley William Shawcross, Life Sentence - The Memoirs of Hartley Shawcross (Constable, London 1995), 2–15.

For an article in a publication: Ian Blackshaw, 'Settling Sports Domain Name Disputes through the World Intellectual Property Organization', (2009) 10 BLI 61, 66.

Legal case: Phipps v Boardman, [1976] 2 AC 46 (HL).

Website: Shami Chakrabarti, 'The End of Innocence' (Lecture at the Centre for Public Law in Cambridge 2004) <http://www.liberty-humanrights.org.uk/resources/articles> accessed 20 February 2005

All materials for the journal must be in English. In special circumstances articles written in a foreign language will be considered for translation and publication. Such articles when submitted to the Editorial Board must be accompanied by a synopsis in English.

Footnotes should be numbered from 1-99.

The citation for the journal is in the following style: [2007] DRI 25.

All materials should be submitted as a Word document via email.

Images/diagrams/graphs etc may be included but they will be restricted to black and white. Please send diagrams etc in a separate file, with insertions clearly marked in the article.

Contributors are recommended to retain a copy of their article. The author should supply his or her contact details for further correspondence.

The rights of the author will be respected, the name of the author will always be clearly associated with the article and, except for necessary editorial changes, no substantial alteration to the article will be made without consulting the author.
