

Journal of Energy and Natural Resources Law (JERL)

Guidelines and information for contributors

- 1) The Journal of Energy & Natural Resources Law (JERL) is the leading refereed journal in the field of energy and natural resources law. Its coverage includes oil and gas law, mineral law (covering legal questions relating to minerals, including non-fuel minerals and the nuclear fuel cycle), coal law, water law and renewable energy law (which includes legal aspects of such matters as hydro and geothermal power, solar, tidal, wind and ocean energy, and timber and agricultural waste use).
- 2) The Editor welcomes the submission of articles that illuminate legal problems or issues currently faced by governments, companies and international organisations by setting them within their general legal, economic or political context. Of particular interest will be articles that record the actual experience of lawyers resolving practical problems or developing legal devices or techniques, as well as those from academics contributing the fruits of their research into larger issues of law, economics or politics.
- 3) Articles should not normally exceed 10,000 words in length. Exceptionally, where the nature of the topic warrants it, the Editor will be prepared to consider longer articles. All articles should include a word count (including footnotes) on the title page.
- 4) The Editor also welcomes the submission (especially by practitioners) of shorter notes and comments of up to 3,000 words on matters that are of interest to the journal's readers but that do not lend themselves to full-length article treatment.
- 5) The article must be the original work of the author. If it contains material that is someone else's copyright, the unrestricted permission of the copyright owner must be obtained and evidence of this submitted with the article and the material should be clearly identified and acknowledged within the text. The article shall not, to the best of the author's knowledge, contain anything which is libellous, illegal, or infringes anyone's copyright or other rights.
- 6) Except in special circumstances, the Editor will not consider articles published or to be published elsewhere. Authors are asked to confirm that their article has not and will not be so published, or to explain the relevant circumstances.
- 7) Copyright will normally be assigned to the IBA and the IBA will have the exclusive right to first publication both to reproduce and/or distribute an article (including the Terms and Conditions for submission of articles abstract) itself throughout the world in printed, electronic or any other medium, and in turn to authorise others (including Reproduction Rights Organisations such as the Copyright Licensing Agency and the Copyright Clearance Center) to do the same. Following first publication, such publishing rights shall be nonexclusive, except that publication in another journal will require permission from and acknowledgment of the IBA. Such permission may be obtained from the Director of Content at editor@int-bar.org.
- 8) The title and author of the article should be clearly indicated together with brief personal details, postal and e-mail address to be published with the article.
- 9) Authors of articles are asked to provide a brief headnote of around 100 words describing the contents of their article.
- 10) All articles are refereed to ensure both accuracy and relevance. Authors may be asked to revise their articles before final acceptance.
- 11) Authors are asked to supply the name and current e-mail contact details for at least one potential reviewer (please note that the Editor assumes no obligation to send the article to the suggested individual for review).
- 12) Authors of articles are asked to use the approved form of citation of legal materials common in their own country.

13) All materials for the journal must be in English. In special circumstances, articles written in a foreign language will be considered for translation and publication. Such articles, when submitted to the Editor, must be accompanied by a synopsis in English.

14) Footnotes should be numbered consecutively throughout the text with Arabic numerals and should be as concise as possible.

15) For a guide to house style please see IBA style guide here.

16) The citation for the journal is in the following style: (2011) 29 JERL 321 (where 29 is the volume and 321 the relevant page number).

17) JERL uses Routledge's Submission Portal to manage the submission process. To submit, please visit the JERL homepage on T&F Online and click the 'submit an article' button. You will need to log in to the submission portal; this can be done using your T&F account, your institutional account, or with your ORCID. The submission portal will take you through a series of questions to capture the necessary author and article information, and you will be asked to upload your article files. Please have your abstract and keywords available, as you will be asked to enter these elements separately. (Alternatively, you can email your typescript as a Microsoft Word document to the Editor Don C Smith at Don.Smith@du.edu).

18) If you don't already have an ORCID, creating one takes 30 seconds and will allow you to login to a variety of other publishers' systems as well as uniquely identifying your contribution to the scholarly record.

19) Authors are recommended to keep a copy of their article.
