Beyond the Brussels effect: mapping the sovereign AI landscape across Washington, Beijing, and broader Asia

When the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) first took effect in the EU, global legal and regulatory discourse heavily focused on the so-called 'Brussels effect'. Recently, however, as AI takes the centre stage, the imperative for sovereign AI has emerged as a new defining catalyst. In response, the US is actively asserting control over cross-border data flows on national security grounds – such as through bulk data transfer rules – while tightening oversight on advanced AI models following events like the Mythos Preview incident. Concurrently, China seeks to extend its strategic influence through initiatives like the World AI Cooperation Organization, while Asian nations, including Japan, Singapore and South Korea, are pioneering diverse frameworks to accelerate domestic AI innovation. As the prospects for a harmonised global AI governance framework remain uncertain, legal professionals must step up to serve as essential navigators through this increasingly complex policy and regulatory landscape.

Haksoo Ko Former Chairman, Personal Information Protection Commission; Professor, Seoul National University School of Law, Seoul

0945 – 1000 Keynote speech

Innovation at the frontline: legal leadership in AI, defence and global technology

As AI, defence, space and digital technologies increasingly converge, companies face unprecedented legal, regulatory and geopolitical challenges. This keynote explores how general counsel can enable innovation while navigating economic security, export controls, cybersecurity, cross-border collaboration and responsible AI governance. Drawing on the experience of a global technology and defence company, the session examines how legal leadership can build trust, resilience and sustainable growth in an increasingly complex world.

Yeon Hak Kim Deputy General Counsel and Senior Executive Vice President, Hanwha, Seoul

1000 – 1115 AI sovereignty and national competitiveness: regulation, infrastructure and investment

As countries race to secure AI leadership, governments are increasingly pursuing sovereign AI strategies through regulation, investment in computing infrastructure, data governance frameworks and public-private partnerships.

This session will explore how jurisdictions in Asia, Europe and North America are balancing innovation, national security and economic competitiveness, and what these developments mean for businesses operating across borders.

1415 – 1515 Caught in the net: platform liability, intermediary responsibility and the cross-border enforcement crisis in the digital ecosystem

The explosive growth of digital platforms, from e-commerce marketplaces and social media networks to app stores and AI-powered content aggregators, has fundamentally disrupted traditional IP enforcement frameworks. Rights holders increasingly find themselves chasing infringement across borderless online ecosystems where the identity of the infringer may be obscured, the platform's legal obligations are unclear, and the applicable law is contested. This panel will discuss these issues across jurisdictions represented on the panel.

Marko Zoretic Knobbe Martens, Irvine, California

1515 – 1615 Beyond human control: liability, autonomy and accountability in the age of AI agents and robotics

The session will examine how AI systems are moving beyond traditional chatbots and software environments into physical and autonomous decision-making roles, including service robots, autonomous vehicles, drones, surgical robotics, and AI agents capable of negotiating contracts, filing regulatory submissions, or conducting transactions online.

The panel will explore how these developments challenge established legal doctrines in areas such as liability, agency, product safety, intellectual property, confidentiality and professional responsibility, and will provide practical guidance on contracts, governance policies, compliance structures and insurance solutions for increasingly autonomous AI systems.

1615 – 1645 Coffee/tea break

1645 – 1800 Key art law disputes in a changing landscape: what do we see, and can arbitration help?

Art-related disputes increasingly involve cross-border transactions, cultural heritage claims, restitution demands, authenticity disputes and competing ownership interests. In this context, arbitration is often presented as a secure, confidential and internationally enforceable mechanism for resolving complex art disputes.

This session will examine whether arbitration can genuinely serve as a safeguard in the art world, exploring its advantages, limitations and practical challenges through recent cases and developments across different jurisdictions.

0930 – 1045 Securing the stack: legal frontiers in cybersecurity, critical infrastructure and autonomous systems

As societies become dependent on interconnected autonomous systems – from satellite networks to AI-driven communications platforms to smart infrastructure – the legal frameworks governing their security have become a genuinely cross-disciplinary challenge. This panel asks: who is legally responsible when the stack fails, is attacked, or is weaponised?

1115 – 1230 Cross-border AI in practice: legal challenges for global business

Artificial intelligence is increasingly deployed across multiple jurisdictions, yet businesses must navigate an increasingly fragmented legal landscape. This session will explore the practical legal challenges arising from cross-border AI deployment, including intellectual property, copyright, data governance, privacy, contractual allocation of risk, product liability, platform regulation, and compliance with divergent AI regulatory frameworks. Rather than focusing on a single jurisdiction, the discussion will examine how multinational businesses and their advisers can manage conflicting legal requirements and develop practical global strategies.

1230 – 1330 Lunch

1330 – 1445 Communications infrastructure, cybersecurity and AI safety: regulatory developments worldwide

In the current environment, with AI innovations creating an unprecedented explosion of demand for communications infrastructure, governments around the globe are considering the need for regulation of that infrastructure to provide protections in two critical areas: cybersecurity and AI safety. This panel will critically analyse the difference between approaches across jurisdictions and propose solutions for a global approach.

Lucinda Longcroft Tech Council of Australia, Sydney
Jiyoung Sang Bae, Kim & Lee, Seoul
Gil Zhang Fangda Partners, Shanghai

1445 – 1600 Echo chambers and their regulation

Originally, the term 'echo chamber' referred to a room designed to produce echo and reverberation for recording music, such as using a tiled bathroom to create a hollow sound. Today, echo chamber is being used to refer to a digital environment where a person only encounters information, opinions and beliefs that reflect and reinforce their own. This is done by restricting exposure to opposing viewpoints, often amplifying existing views. The net result is creation of a false sense of consensus. Today, Big Tech and media are doing so, via social media feeds, specialised news outlets and homogeneous online forums. Social media algorithms (like those used by Facebook, X, and YouTube) curate content based on past behaviour, showing users only what they already agree with. We then tend to follow like-minded people on social media or discuss topics only with people who share the same views.

The challenge here is that users within an echo chamber might be more susceptible to misinformation, as they are not exposed to diverse perspectives or counterarguments.

These challenges may be addressed by regulation, which doesn't exist. Socially aware corporates can, of course, combine algorithmic adjustments with user-driven content diversification to combat social polarisation. Some strategies that may be implemented by platforms, to combat the ill effects, include developing balanced recommendation systems, enhancing algorithmic transparency, and actively seeking diverse perspectives to mitigate confirmation bias.

Users (in the absence of regulators) can demand technology companies disclose how recommendation algorithms function. Users may be provided an option to receive content that presents different viewpoints, rather than only reinforcing pre-existing views. This will allow users to intentionally seek out news from a variety of sources that challenge existing views.

There are a few regulatory frameworks that are giving this trend some thought. The EU Digital Services Act focuses on algorithmic accountability, transparency and requiring platforms to manage risks related to the amplification of divisive or sensational content. The UK Online Safety Act aims to hold platforms accountable for harmful content amplification, including mechanisms that create 'rabbit holes' of extremist material. Data protection laws around the globe restrict the use of personal data for micro-targeting and algorithmic filtering, which are foundational to creating echo chambers. The EU AI Act regulates the underlying AI and algorithms responsible for content curation.

The challenge with having a specific regulation addressing echo chamber ills is that it may violate either freedom of expression or user privacy. What if a user has consented to data collection for personalised services? It is this personalisation that fuels echo chambers. Interestingly, the GDPR focuses on protecting data rather than limiting the 'bubble' effect!

1600 – 1630 Coffee/tea break

1630 – 1745 Current issues in space law – back to the Moon and permanent Moon settlement

This session will review current issues in space law arising from the renewed global focus on returning to the Moon and the prospect of permanent lunar settlement.

It will consider proposed lunar missions and plans by NASA, the European Space Agency, China and Roscosmos, and will examine how existing principles of international space law, including the non-appropriation of outer space and celestial bodies, apply to these developments.

The session will also explore how the need for lunar development can be reconciled with private and common usage, the application of the 'peaceful purposes' principle and restrictions on certain military establishments, and the legal issues surrounding commercial activities on the Moon, including intellectual property and international agreements for commercial operations.

Participants are responsible for making their own travel arrangements to attend the Conference. It is recommended that you check any visa requirements with your local embassy or consulate. In particular, participants should inform themselves of the entry requirements (i.e. visa requirements) of the event location and complete the necessary formalities in good time before the event begins. The IBA will not be liable if a visa application is denied, a visa is received too late to attend, or if a delegate is not able to travel to the Conference for any other reason.

We are unable to dispatch visa invitation letters to support your visa application prior to receipt of your booking form and full payment of conference fees.

Please apply for your visa in good time.

Carbon efficient travel

With IBA conferences taking place in major business centres all over the world, travel is an unavoidable reality for our delegates. The IBA encourages its members and delegates to be responsible and conscious of the impact travel has on the environment and to take measures to reduce the carbon impact of their travel.

Some suggested steps that delegates can take include:

- Travel by train instead of flying if possible.
- Book direct flights instead of connecting flights, if available, as limiting the number of stops needed will reduce your carbon footprint.
- Consider the impact of the travel class that you book – business class travel equates to 3 times the carbon footprint of economy class.

Relying on the local public transport is the more carbon friendly option, but this is not always a realistic option. Where reliance on taxis/cars is needed use electric vehicles over petrol or diesel and share vehicle usage with other delegates and colleagues.

Badges

For security reasons, name badges are required to be worn visibly at all times during the Conference and at any IBA organised social function linked to the Conference. Proof of identity is required to collect your badge and for a replacement badge to be issued. Checks will be in place and staff will challenge delegates not wearing a valid conference badge. Anyone not wearing a badge must get a replacement badge from IBA staff or will be required to leave the venue immediately. Anyone found wearing a badge that they are not entitled to wear will have the badge removed and will be required to leave the Conference.

All conference bookings are non-transferable and cannot be resold, transferred or passed on to another person, whether for commercial gain or otherwise.

Name badges can only be used by the booked attendee to access the event or social function; name badges cannot be shared or borrowed by any other person, whether registered for the event or otherwise.

Any breach of these terms will result in the booked attendee being required to leave the event / social function with immediate effect and the cancellation of their booking without reimbursement or refund of any previously paid fees.

Dietary requirements

The IBA endeavours to accommodate all special dietary requests confirmed to us before bookings close. Requests made after this time cannot be guaranteed and all dietary requests are subject to local availability (which is outside the IBA's control).

Photography and filming

Certain sessions and social functions at an IBA Event may be photographed or filmed and some of this content may be used for future IBA marketing materials, member communications, products or services. Should you have any concerns about this, or if you do not wish to be featured in any of these materials, please contact the IBA Marketing Department at ibamarketing@int-bar.org.

No participant, attending in any capacity, is authorised to record or film the conference working sessions, workshops or social function without the prior written permission of the Conferences Director.

Illness

You will not attend the Conference if you are displaying symptoms of a communicable disease. Should you develop symptoms during your attendance, you will inform a member of IBA staff by email (Sohyun.kwon@int-bar.org) and you agree not to attend any further sessions or related events and to comply with all local and national restrictions.

You agree that, if asked by the relevant local or national authorities, the IBA has permission to pass on your personal information and contact details to those authorities should contact tracing be required.

Promotional literature

No individual or organisation may display or distribute publicity material or other printed matter during an IBA Event, unless by prior arrangement with the IBA. Organisations and companies wishing to discuss promotional opportunities should contact the IBA Sponsorship Department at sponsorship@int-bar.org.

Conference sell-outs

The IBA hosts conferences in venues of a suitable size for each event; however, there are times when a conference may sell out and the IBA cannot guarantee places will be available. Should this happen, prospective delegates will be informed, and a waiting list will operate. The waiting list will function on a 'first come, first served' basis, subject to receiving booked delegate cancellations. The waiting list for the Conference will close once the waiting list has reached ten per cent of the venue capacity, as it is very unlikely a place will become available. IBA will not be liable for any expenses or costs incurred by you (including travel and accommodation costs) in relation to attendance at the Conference, including if you travel to the Conference without a confirmed place).

Harassment

Conferences provide unrivalled professional development and network-building opportunities for international legal practitioners and their professional associates. The IBA values the participation of every delegate and member of the IBA and wants all attendees to have an enjoyable and fulfilling experience. Accordingly, all Conference attendees are expected to show respect and courtesy to other attendees, IBA staff and those involved with hosting the events throughout the Conference and at all events, receptions, and parties, whether officially organised by the IBA or others. All delegates, guests, attendees, speakers, exhibitors, staff and volunteers at the Conference are required to conform to the IBA Harassment Policy. See www.ibanet.org/iba-harassment-policy.

Cancellation by the IBA

We may at any time, with or without giving notice, in our absolute discretion and without giving any reason, cancel or postpone the Conference, change its venue or any of the other published particulars, or withdraw any invitation to attend. In any case, we will not be liable for any loss, liability, damage or expense suffered or incurred by any person, nor will we return any money paid to us in connection with the Conference unless we are satisfied not only that the money in question remains under our control but also that the person who paid it has been unfairly prejudiced (as to which, decision shall be in their sole and unfettered discretion and, when announced, final and conclusive).

The IBA shall have no liability to you, for a refund or otherwise, where the IBA is forced to cancel or reschedule part or all of the Conference due to reasons beyond our reasonable control. However, refunds may be paid at IBA's discretion.

IBA will be entitled to change the venue and make minor changes to the timing and content of the Conference.

The IBA, its officers and staff accept no responsibility for any views expressed, presentations or materials produced by delegates or speakers at the Conference.

International Bar Association

the global voice of the legal profession

About the IBA

The International Bar Association (IBA), established in 1947, is the world's leading organisation of international legal practitioners, bar associations, law firms and law societies.

The IBA influences the development of international law reform and shapes the future of the legal profession throughout the world. It has a membership of more than 80,000 individual lawyers and more than 190 bar associations and law societies spanning over 170 countries.

Inspired by the vision of the United Nations, the IBA was founded in the same spirit, just before the Universal Declaration of Human Rights was proclaimed in 1948.

The IBA covers all practice areas and professional interests, providing members with access to leading experts and up-to date information, enabling them to better represent their clients' interests.

Through its various committees, fora, and task forces, the IBA facilitates the exchange of information and views among its members as to laws, practices and professional responsibilities relating to the practice of law around the globe.

IBA Art, Cultural Institutions and Heritage Law Committee

The Art, Cultural Institutions and Heritage Law Committee focuses on all legal aspects pertaining to art, artists, the art market and cultural heritage. The Committee's interest extends from antiquities all the way to contemporary and ultra-contemporary works of art.

With members from over 50 countries – including experts in museums, galleries, auction houses, and cultural heritage protection – the Committee fosters communication among legal professionals on all matters involving Art and Cultural Property Law. Our goal is to establish a worldwide network of Art and Cultural Property lawyers with information and discussion links to relevant NGOs, institutes of art law, and governmental organisations.

IBA Communications Law Committee

The Communications Law Committee is a leading global forum for legal practitioners with specialist expertise or interest in the communications sector. The Committee offers members access to a worldwide network of leading practitioners, in-house counsel and regulators active in digital, communications and media markets. We encourage the sharing of sectoral expertise through regular publication of articles, periodic issues of our technical journal, the annual committee conference hosted jointly with IBA Antitrust Section, and specialised sessions at the IBA Annual Conference. The scope of the Committee's work covers network, service and content-related developments across all delivery platforms. This provides members with access to practical global perspectives on the array of technological, commercial and policy issues which confront communications lawyers, their companies and clients.

IBA Intellectual Property and Entertainment Law Committee

The main areas are patents, trade marks, copyright, trade secrets and unfair competition. Allied to these are a number of related areas including data protection, database protection, privacy, design rights, domain names and the like.

In the entertainment law area the key focus is on the creation, provision and delivery of content in relation to print, films, broadcasts, cable programmes, musical works and sound recordings. There is also involvement with media law including defamation and privacy and authors' rights in a more general sense.

International Bar Association

the global voice of the legal profession

IBA Media Law Committee

The Media Law Committee focuses on sharing knowledge among members and stakeholders on legal matters related to the media industry. This includes both content and communication, which has become increasingly international due to global media networks. As media law expands beyond print, radio, and TV to new media such as e-commerce, the committee fosters cooperation with journalists and other media professionals. We regularly address legal developments through programs at the IBA Annual Conference and newsletters, reflecting the evolving nature of media law in a globalised world.

IBA Space Law Committee

The Space Law Committee provides a forum for outer space lawyers to address the increasing number of practical legal issues arising in commercial and regulatory activities in this specialised area of domestic and international law.

IBA Technology Law Committee

The Technology Law Committee brings together lawyers addressing the evolving legal challenges of modern technologies. The Committee's mandate covers a wide range of tech-related areas, supported by eight subcommittees: AI and Robotics, Data Law, Technology Disputes, Fintech, Life Sciences, Outsourcing and Managed Services, Platforms, E-commerce & Social Media and Cybersecurity.

Each subcommittee focuses on specific issues, such as intellectual property, data protection, financial regulation, medical technologies, and cybersecurity, helping professionals navigate the complex legal landscape of emerging technologies.
