This panel will discuss common (and uncommon) defences that are typically raised and how they can be tackled and conquered by creditors. Panellists will consider, for example:

- the use (or misuse) of restructuring plans;
- what creative strategies might be deployed to enforce judgments/awards against difficult debtors;
- surpassing the challenges of piercing the corporate veil and alter ego arguments; and

He re-joined Sotheby's as European Head of Restitution in 2006, then Christie's in March 2022 as Global Head of Restitution.

The “mini” Anton Piller (or stand and deliver) order will be considered together with the sealed and gagged disclosure order against a solicitors’ firm (such as in Republic of Haiti and others v Jean-Clause Duvalier and others).

- What remedies are available under the civil law tradition to achieve a similar aim?
- The issue of legal privilege/professional secrecy will be considered. Does privilege protect against the disclosure of documents showing assets or property of a defendant?
- Pursuing solicitors for the balance of a loss (solicitors in the firing line).

1545 – 1645 SESSION SIX

Assisting victims of small(er) scale fraud and corruption

Asset recovery practitioners are, at the end of the day, firm proponents of obtaining redress for victims of fraud and corruption. However, the cost of pursuing a multi-jurisdictional or even domestic asset recovery strategy is often prohibitive, especially in the context of smaller value claims. This session invites panellists to propose practical solutions to assist victims or debtors in smaller scale cases to achieve the justice that they deserve.

0930 – 1030 SESSION SEVEN

Leveraging insolvency tools in the fight against multi-jurisdictional fraud and achieving cross border recoveries

In May 2024, the UK Supreme Court considered, in Invest Bank v El-Husseiny, whether the Court of Appeal reached the right decision in finding that where a debtor causes a company that he owns and controls to transfer assets in an attempt to frustrate enforcement action, those transfers can be challenged as transactions at an undervalue under section 423 of the UK Insolvency Act (which the UK courts have confirmed may have extraterritorial effect). This panel will discuss:

- other countries' approaches to transactions at undervalue; and
- other means to getting around separate legal personality arguments behind which fraudsters all too often hide.

1200 – 1255 SESSION NINE

The role of regulators in asset recovery

Asset recovery is a multi-disciplinary practice area, which often raises discussion around the merits of a civil versus criminal asset recovery strategy, and the inter-play between those alternative (or parallel) routes to recovering assets. How do regulatory regimes fit into the asset recovery equation? How can victims or debtors leverage regulatory processes to obtain redress? What rights and standing do victims have and what restitution is available?

Moderator

Jonathan Addo Harneys, Road Town; Treasurer, IBA Asset Recovery Committee

Speakers

Jeffrey Alberts Pryor Cashman, New York

Joanna Bogdanska KW Kruk and Partners, Warsaw; Newsletter Officer, IBA Asset Recovery Committee

Andy Liao Han Kun Law, Shanghai

1255 – 1345 SESSION TEN

Experiences of direct asset recovery via Article 53 of the UN Convention Against Corruption

How are State Parties' corruption claims being treated by other State Parties' courts worldwide? Has progress stalled?

This panel will discuss asset recovery flops and triumphs. Is Article 53 of the UN Convention against Corruption (UNCAC) being implemented in a sensible way worldwide? Is it still impossible for many jurisdictions to litigate their losses? This panel will address, in-depth, the issues and challenges related to civil remedies that are available to address corruption. Panellists will discuss all of the asset recovery tools including seeking compensation for damages suffered, ways of establishing ownership and acting as partie civile.
