The sky is the limit: the city of the future
Look up and do not look down. Major cities around the world are expected to grow significantly in coming years. London and New York currently have nine million inhabitants but are both predicted to reach 11 million by 2050; New Delhi has 21 million inhabitants but is expected to grow to 42 million in 2050.

This development calls for a new type of urban planning with an upwards focus. This will include the creation of communities in the sky, of buildings with forest roofs and connecting bridges, shared facilities and green vertical neighbourhoods.

The effect of electric mobility on infrastructure
Major global cities like Amsterdam, Madrid, Mexico City, Paris and Rome want to ban gasoline and diesel cars as of 2030 to only allow electric cars.
This will fuel the need for charging stations in private residences and public charging stations, and the development of local electric grids and electricity production.
But this will also call for other ways of transportation like Hyperloop, drones, self-driving cars and flying taxis.
How will this affect the infrastructure of the city?

Conference sell-outs
The IBA places its conferences in venues of a suitable size for each event; however, there are times when our conferences may sell out. Should this happen, prospective delegates will be informed and a waiting list will operate. The waiting list will function on a ‘first come, first served’ basis, subject to receiving registered delegate cancellations. The waiting list for a conference will close once it has reached 10 per cent of the conference venue capacity, as it is very unlikely a place will become available. The IBA will not be liable for any travel or accommodation expenses incurred by an individual who travels to a conference without a confirmed place at the event.

Book with confidence
The IBA will offer a full refund if you are required to cancel your registration due to Covid related reasons; we will require written confirmation of your cancellation by the end of business on the first day of the conference.
If the IBA needs to reschedule the event, your registration will be automatically transferred to the new date and no additional fees will be charged. If this date is not convenient for a delegate, a refund of the cost of the conference place will be available on request to the IBA.
If the IBA is unable to reschedule the conference within 12 months of the original scheduled date, a full refund of the cost of the conference place will automatically be made to all delegates.
Please note that the IBA will not provide refunds for any other costs incurred including any travel costs.
If you have questions or concerns, please email confs@int-bar.org
Please note, these terms are subject to any more restrictive or different local requirements, and may be altered and amended from time to time to reflect any changes to restrictions or government requirements.

Photography and filming
Please note that no individual or organisation may display or distribute publicity material or other printed matter during the Conference, unless by prior arrangement with the IBA. Organisations and companies wishing to discuss promotional opportunities should contact the IBA Sponsorship Department at ibamarketing@int-bar.org

The International Bar Association (IBA), established in 1947, is the world's leading organisation of international legal practitioners, bar associations, law firms and law societies.

The IBA influences the development of international law reform and shapes the future of the legal profession throughout the world. It has a membership of more than 80,000 individual lawyers and more than 190 bar associations and law societies spanning over 170 countries.

Inspired by the vision of the United Nations, the IBA was founded in the same spirit, just before the Universal Declaration of Human Rights was proclaimed in 1948.

The IBA covers all practice areas and professional interests, providing members with access to leading experts and up-to-date information, enabling them to better represent their clients' interests.

Through its various committees, fora and task forces, the IBA facilitates the exchange of information and views among its members as to laws, practices and professional responsibilities relating to the practice of law around the globe.

IBA Real Estate Section Overview

While real estate assets are traditionally governed by national rules, real estate transactions have long ceased to be a purely national matter. Today, the ownership of properties is traded among investors around the globe. Increasing internationalisation of all aspects of real estate law has also changed the types of lawyers involved. Transactional specialists who often have a corporate law background have, in many cases, replaced traditional real estate lawyers. In this evolving context, the IBA Real Estate Section provides a unique and valuable forum for lawyers from different countries and legal backgrounds to address all sorts of practical and legal issues, exchange views and meet during conferences.
