ESG, SDGs and sustainability for law firms in Asia Pacific

ESG, SDGs and sustainability for law firms in Asia Pacific Economic, social and governance (ESG) issues are expanding beyond measure and triggering impact across various industries and interests, from consumption patterns to investment decisions, as awareness and participation in ESG and UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) increase at the corporate and country level and, in particular, as financial institutions strengthen evaluation of ESG-friendly practices as a core value in investment targets.

Law firms, as advisors to companies on issues such as compliance and ethical behaviour, are also required to actively participate in ESG and SDGs, not only as a practice area, but also as active participants themselves in expanding various ESG-related efforts. This includes increased transparency in governance, as well as environmental sustainability, diversity and inclusion, respect for human rights, eco-friendly practices and resource conservation.

In this plenary session, a roundtable discussion will be held with senior partners of law firms in various jurisdictions, including the Asia Pacific region, on what activities or efforts are being made by law firms in relation to ESG/SDGs and the challenges and difficulties they face in the process.

Welcome to the regulatory club – digital assets to get a warm welcome

As digital assets in all their various forms move toward adolescence and experience another winter of adjustment, we can expect to see the regulators waiting as they emerge from the frost. The Financial Stability Board (FSB) acting on behalf of the G20 have moved digital assets to the top of their reform agenda and we are likely to see a more concerted effort to align their proposals locally. The effect of this will be greater harmonisation and consistency across regulatory and supervisory approaches for both crypto-assets and stablecoins with a careful watch of other instruments and platforms which need to fall within the regulatory net. Join us for a discussion across a diverse panel of experts as we hear from practitioners and players on the impact of these changes and how this is likely to shape the next phase of the digital asset evolution and how we are likely to see these assets being adopted institutionally.

Asset recovery on a global scale – judgments, awards and everything in between

The recoverability of assets is undoubtedly an important step following the release of a monetary judgment or award. In this session, the panellists will explore issues pertinent to the recovery of assets globally and in particular:

- the management of inter-jurisdictional issues in a global asset recovery strategy;
- a comparative analysis of the enforcement of arbitral awards, mediated settlements and court judgments (including the judgments of international courts such as the UK Commercial Courts, the China International Commercial Court, the Dubai International Financial Centre and the Singapore International Commercial Court);
- the enforceability of decisions against sovereign states (including the immunity of sovereign wealth funds and their underlying assets); and
- everything 'in between', including asset tracing and investigations and the possibility of third-party funding.

Genetic information, biometric data and facial recognition – what does the future of privacy look like?

We're generating biological data like never before. Your phone probably unlocks with Face ID, can tell your body fat percentage, and tracks the number of steps you walk, your blood pressure and your REM sleep cycles. If you step out for a morning jog in any dense city, odds are someone can retrace your steps through vast public surveillance projects, and profile your gait and fitness. The increasing sophistication of technology challenges our privacy. This session intends to examine the impact of emerging trends in genetic information, biometric data, facial recognition and similar human biology-based technologies on the individual right to privacy.

In this robust session we will hear honest, no holds barred views from the panellists on what works and what doesn't.

Legal and policy issues in the use of economic sanctions

In reaction to dramatic changes in the geopolitical landscape around the world, we have been seeing dynamic changes in the legal regime of economic sanctions and export/import controls. International trades have become much more complicated, and companies need to closely follow those rapidly and dynamically changing restrictions imposed by various jurisdictions concurrently. This session will discuss impact and implication for the Asia Pacific region and beyond, focusing on recent changes of economic sanctions and export/import controls.

The topics will include:

- recent dynamic changes of economic sanctions and export/import controls for various jurisdictions;
- background reasons for those drastic changes, including current situation of international trade agreements;
- impact and implication of those economic sanctions and export/import controls in Asia Pacific region and beyond;
- counter measures taken by the sanctioned countries (such as blocking rules) and the impact;

- countries caught in the middle – dilemma to comply with conflicting laws at the same time; and
- what to expect in the near future on economic sanctions and export/import controls in the Asia Pacific Region.

What is the judicial view taken on enforceability of tiered dispute resolution clauses and how to draft such clause? What about the latest developments in mediation? Any interesting judicial decisions regarding dispute resolution clauses rendered by courts of various Asia Pacific countries?

Distressed debt opportunities in the Asia Pacific

As the M&A market regularises from last year's lofty heights, the availability of credit in Asia Pacific markets is becoming constrained leading to opportunities in the non-performing loans (NPL) sector. In this session we explore how the NPL market is likely to play out in 2023 and discuss the following key issues:

- impact of the slow-down in the Chinese property market;
- developments in creditors' schemes of arrangement in Singapore and Australia;
- key sectors and markets for NPLs;
- the role of private debt funds for this sector; and
- opportunities in emerging markets.

Current developments in M&A and FDI in the Asia Pacific region

M&A activity reached record levels in the Asia Pacific region last year, accompanied by a significant rise in cross border deals. While M&A momentum remains strong, this year has also brought major geopolitical and financial headwinds, which, in addition to post-pandemic changes, have resulted in additional complexity and challenges for M&A and foreign direct investment (FDI). This session will explore recent M&A and FDI trends across several Asia Pacific jurisdictions and discuss how lawyers and their clients can respond and adapt to such trends. The session will present case studies of multi-jurisdictional M&A deals and invite audience input through live polls and other interactive features.

General counsels on ESG

The general counsel has long been seen as the guardian of an organisation's values. In the case of ESG it is both guide and guardian as so many are grappling with how best to implement ESG goals. CPTPP, RCEP and IPEF: making sense of the alphabet soup of Asian trade agreements

In view of the increasing difficulties of negotiating trade agreements on a multilateral basis, more countries – especially those in Asia – have instead turned to regional trade agreements in order to negotiate new rules to liberalise trade. The three leading trade agreements in the Asia Pacific region are the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership ('CPTPP'), the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership ('RCEP') and the Indo-Pacific Economic Framework ('IPEF'). These agreements are in different stages of negotiation and implementation, and each offers unique benefits to the countries that are party to them, and to companies operating in those countries. Counsel should be aware of the pros and cons of each, and how these agreements can be used to the best advantage of clients operating in the region.

Session Chair

Eric Emerson Steptoe, Washington, DC

Panellists

Ilham Satria Bustami Regulatory & Government Affairs Specialist, FedEx, Jakarta
Jeena Kim Bae, Kim & Lee, Seoul; Regional Representative Asia Pacific, IBA Anti-Corruption Committee

Working with your General Counsel in cross-border M&A transactions – a guide for practitioners

Post-pandemic economic recovery is initiated by more complex cross-border M&A transactions, especially in the Asia Pacific region. Building trustworthy collaboration and maintaining good relationships among private practitioners and in-house counsel should be a matter of importance for the successful deals. The session will present some of the key elements of such cooperative style of business in multi-jurisdictional M&A transactions, which includes:

- establishing clear scope of work and operational expectations upfront;
- ensuring thorough structuring support – anticipating regulatory and procedural challenges and workarounds ahead of time;
- clear risk-identification and mitigation advice;
- providing insights into the workings of local regulators and other third parties relevant to the transaction;
- commercial and practical approaches to meet client requirements and problem solving;
- effective and proactive project management – rallying other service providers;
- ensuring clear business communication and no mixed messages/ crossed wires at all times; and
- life post-closing – ancillary support and follow-up.

The speakers from this region will discuss the industrial development trends, related legal issues and opportunities which will cover the following topics:

Corruption defences in investor– state arbitrations: a case of odious debt?

The occurrence of corruption in foreign investment has pushed corruption to the forefront of investor-state arbitrations and led to the emergence of the state-invoked 'corruption defence'. This session will first cover what the 'corruption defence' is and when is it invoked (such as whether this defence is a jurisdictional issue, admissibility issue or merits issue). Further, the issue of what is, or should be, the standard of proof in cases involving corruption will be discussed. Second, the session will cover under what circumstances, in practice, has the corruption defence been upheld in notable cases. Lastly, the session will discuss from a broader perspective whether (and, if so, how) a host state can be prevented from using its own corruption to its advantage.

International Bar Association

the global voice of the legal profession

The International Bar Association (IBA), established in 1947, is the world's leading organisation of international legal practitioners, bar associations and law societies.

The IBA influences the development of international law reform and shapes the future of the legal profession throughout the world. It has a membership of more than 80,000 individual lawyers and more than 190 bar associations and law societies spanning over 170 countries.

Inspired by the vision of the United Nations, the IBA was founded in the same spirit, just before the Universal Declaration of Human Rights was proclaimed in 1948.

The IBA covers all practice areas and professional interests, providing members with access to leading experts and up-to-date information, enabling them to better represent their clients' interests.

Through its various committees, fora and task forces, the IBA facilitates the exchange of information and views among its members as to laws, practices and professional responsibilities relating to the practice of law around the globe.

IBA Asia Pacific Regional Forum

In addition to offering an unrivalled opportunity to establish contact among lawyers within and outside the region, and with acknowledged experts on different areas of law, specialist Forum activities provide an unparalleled opportunity to keep abreast of legal business developments in the region. Members also benefit from excellent working relations with national Bars, the Inter-Pacific Bar Association and LAWASIA.
