Enforcers roundtable: the challenges of regulating the digital economy

In this panel, key antitrust agencies from both Asia-Pacific region and beyond will share their thoughts and observations on the latest developments in antitrust law enforcement in their jurisdictions. They will comment on what they see happening in antitrust law enforcement internationally and the extent to which their own antitrust enforcement is inspired by global antitrust developments or instead is characterized by unique features and local market realities. Panelists will discuss how to enforce without political intervention and the role of public interest considerations including whether the antitrust agencies should and can be relevant to pressing priorities such as tackling climate change, developing the digital agenda and dealing with de-globalisation and cost of living/labour market issues. Finally, the panelists will share their vision and insights on possible future developments in antitrust enforcement both globally and in the Asia-Pacific region.

Sustainability agreements and competition law: any green light at the end of the tunnel?

Competitor collaborations on sustainability can be a force for good in our wider society where they aim to promote environmental and other social goals including addressing climate change, ensuring sustainable use of resources and the promotion of human and labour rights and animal welfare. Is competition law an obstacle to such agreements? Regulators are increasingly aware that competition rules need to take into account sustainability goals and be applied more flexibly to enable benign cooperation. However, getting it wrong can result in lengthy investigations, hefty fines and private damages actions that run in the billions. A number of authorities around the world have recently issued guidance to provide companies and their legal advisors a framework for distinguishing between positive collaboration agreements and problematic agreements that result in collusion. This panel will discuss recent developments and guidelines with the hope of shedding some 'green' light in this difficult area of the law.

Abusive behaviour beyond dominance

The contours of unilateral conduct are rapidly expanding in Asia and around the world to address issues beyond exclusionary conduct to various forms of exploitative conduct. The panel will explore how dominance rules and other competition regulations are being used to address the abuse of superior bargaining positions and scrutinise positions of relative dominance. Is this a passing fad or a future trend? Should unilateral conduct rules be used to address market practices where no single entity is dominant? How do you evaluate the harm to competition in such instances? How will free and independent consumer choice be gauged – particularly in the digital economy? The panel will examine these and other questions, drawing on global law and policy developments.

0900 – 1200 Registration

0900 – 1015 Session five

What next for digital platforms and Big Tech?

Is there a need to review traditional thresholds on dominance in the digital economy? Will big tech ever be able enter into another acquisition? Is ex-ante regulation of platforms the way forward? The panel will dive into Europe's Digital Markets Act and China's Anti-Monopoly Guidelines for the Digital Economy, and discuss latest developments around the world including in the assessment of market power and 'killer acquisitions'.

Conference sell-outs

The IBA places its conferences in venues of a suitable size for each event; however, there are times when our conferences may sell out. Should this happen, prospective delegates will be informed and a waiting list will operate. The waiting list will function on a 'first come, first served' basis, subject to receiving registered delegate cancellations. The waiting list for a conference will close once it has reached ten per cent of the conference venue capacity, as it is very unlikely a place will become available. The IBA will not be liable for any travel or accommodation expenses incurred by an individual who travels to a conference without a confirmed place at the event.

Provided you have cancelled your registration to attend an IBA Conference in accordance with the terms of the 'cancellation of registration' clause included in the 'Information' section of the relevant Conference programme, you must then confirm to us in writing at the IBA office as soon as possible, but in no event later than one year (12 calendar months) from the date of any such Conference, all necessary details to enable any reimbursement owed to you to be paid. We regret that no refunds will be made after the date that is one year (12 calendar months) after the date of the relevant Conference.

Travel arrangements and visas

Participants are responsible for making their own travel arrangements. It is recommended that you check your visa requirements with your local embassy or consulate. We are unable to dispatch visa invitation letters to support your visa application prior to receipt of your registration form and full payment of registration fees.

International Bar Association

the global voice of the legal profession

The International Bar Association (IBA), established in 1947, is the world's leading organisation of international legal practitioners, bar associations and law societies.

The IBA influences the development of international law reform and shapes the future of the legal profession throughout the world. It has a membership of more than 80,000 individual lawyers and more than 190 bar associations and law societies spanning over 170 countries.

Inspired by the vision of the United Nations, the IBA was founded in the same spirit, just before the Universal Declaration of Human Rights was proclaimed in 1948.

The IBA covers all practice areas and professional interests, providing members with access to leading experts and up-to-date information, enabling them to better represent their clients' interests.

Through its various committees, fora and task forces, the IBA facilitates the exchange of information and views among its members as to laws, practices and professional responsibilities relating to the practice of law around the globe.

The IBA Antitrust Section

The Antitrust Section provides an international forum for thought leadership with respect to antitrust law developments and the profession through submissions to competition agencies, training programs/missions, developing the law through our conferences, publications, and interaction with antitrust enforcement authorities and the profession.

In addition, there is a strong commitment to bring together international practitioners to facilitate closer working relationships. The Section is increasingly relied upon by government officials and members of the private sector for its expertise and practical input into antitrust developments, including through its Working Group submissions.
